Course Objectives:

The aim of this course is to enable students to use English in a simple and understandable way in basic communication situations they may encounter in everyday life.

The course aims to develop students' listening, speaking, reading, and writing skills at the A1 level. Students are expected to describe places and everyday objects, ask for and give simple directions, talk about things they did in the past, and communicate in basic everyday situations related to topics such as travel and shopping. In addition, students will learn and use basic grammatical structures, develop their vocabulary related to everyday life, and use English to communicate through simple sentences in familiar situations.

Course Content:

The course aims to develop students' four basic language skills—listening, speaking, reading, and writing—at the targeted A1 level through basic grammar structures, everyday vocabulary, pronunciation practice, short dialogues, listening and speaking activities, level-appropriate reading texts, and simple writing tasks. The course content covers everyday topics such as places in a city and giving directions, daily activities in the past, famous people and their lives, travel and weather, nature, shopping and clothes, free-time activities, sports and games, and tourist attractions. Through these topics, students are expected to use basic vocabulary and grammatical structures to form simple sentences, engage in short conversations, and communicate in familiar everyday situations.

Methods and Techniques of Instruction: Presentation, question-and-answer, dialogue-based interaction, writing activities, and interactive online activities.
